SALES AND SERVICE

8 NILE STREET, PORT ADELAIDE, S.A. 5015

mally clad to line up to meet the Flag Officers, which could be difficult for those from the smaller vessels. Jammed into the central dinghy shed those in the know carefully kept away from the spot where the ladies' lavatory upstairs would overflow. Of course, there was the time when it did so on the pianist and the VIP's ...

In great contrast, the garden party on the lawns was a major success. Most impressive of all was the Governor, who is our Patron. This extraordinary old lady amazed one Member after another by recalling names and associations from previous years. We were beside her naval ADC, who repeatedly consulted his schedule as she lingered, obviously enjoying herself.

Those who dined ashore were excellently catered for, and the three bands provided for the mix of generations, without impinging on each other. The beautifully arranged flowers in the Clubhouse and Quarterdeck skilfully displayed our colours. Like Bryan Price, Austin Gibson and his helpers found that the weather was not kind to their component. Even so, after an unavoidable delay the fireworks were a spectacular way to mark the end of the day. Finally, thanks to the breathalyser, we saw little of the overindulgence which has sometimes marred the event in the past.

Next day came the ceremony which marked the return of Southern Myth to the pool, followed by a reunion luncheon. Judging by the large numbers of old Myth men who came, if a new generation can experience even part of what they did, Hilary Barclay will have the satisfaction of knowing that for years to come young people will learn seamanship on that marvellous old vessel, brought back to better than she originally was.
