Yachts on dresses at TRIO AT GALA SEA EVENT squadron opening

There were almost as many fish and yachts on fabrics as there were in and on the sea at Outer Harbor today for the gala opening of the SA Yacht Squadron.

Dressing was informal and gay, with jacketed sunfrocks and shorts and shirts top favorites.

The commodore of the squadron (Mr. Henry Rymill) took the salute aboard the Sir Wallace Bruce, and afterwards the 70 official guests were entertained aboard Dr. A. L. Tostevin's launch, the Nyroca.

The Governor (Sir Wilmoughby Norrie) and Lady Norrie were guests of Mr. Rymill, and were attended by Captain R. Owen.

Mr. Rymill's mother, Mrs. H. E. Rymill, helped entertain the guests wearing a cool navy-and-white patterned frock and white accessories.

Among the guests were Sir Henry Newland, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Barr Smith, Commander and Mrs. J. A. Travis, Wing Commander Ian Campbell, the Marine Minister (Mr. McIntosh) and Mrs. McIntosh, the Education Minister (Mr. Rudall) and Mrs. Rudall, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Crawford, Mr. C. B. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Jock Gosse, Mr. Harold Tapping, MP, and commodores of other yacht clubs.

Party, dance

For the cocktail party and the dance which followed picnic meals aboard the yachts, the clubhouse was decorated with huge troughs of delphiniums, lupins, and hydrangeas brought from Mr. Henry Rymill's Stirling home, Glenalta.

The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress (Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rymill) entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ridgway Newland and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Downer aboard the Avocet.

Mrs. Rymill wore a linen sun-frock and matching bolero with large navy flowers on a white background. Her accessories were white.

Her young daughters, Rosemary and Annabel, and three friends of Rosemary—Della Turnbull, Jeremy Pascoe, and Jim Ford—were also aboard the Avocet. Rosemary wore a checked pink, yellow, and brown cotton sunfrock and bolero, and Annabel was in a similar frock of pale blue and white checks.

On board the Nymphaea, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kemp entertained Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Colin McKay, Mr. and Mrs. Clive Lecher, and John Jarvis.

Mrs. Kemp's Chinese red linen sunfrock and bolero was patterned with white yachts.

Her 10-year-old daughter Susan wore Wedgewood blue linen shorts and a blue and white striped jumper, and Rosemary, 6, was in burgundy corduroy shorts and a burgundy and white striped jumper.

Mrs. McKay's striking sun-frock came from Sydney, and was of multi-colored patchwork. It had narrow plaited straps and a matching jacket.

Double thrill

The opening was a double thrill for Anne Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kemp. She took friends out in her new 12-footer, Tonto, which she was given for her sixteenth birthday.

She wore emerald green shorts patterned with a pirate design, and a white windcheater. For the dance Anne changed into a cotton evening frock.

In Dr. and Mrs. A. Kyle Gault's party were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Woodhead, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Markwell, and Jack Shepherd.

For the cocktail party, Mrs.

Engagement

The engagement is announced of Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dixon, of North Unley, to Ronald, eldest son of Mr. S. H. Lovell, of Clare.

Markwell changed from royal blue corduroy shorts and a blue-and-white check shirt into a striking frock of chartreuse linen patterned with junior blue spots, cut on shirtmaker lines with short batwing sleeves.

Aboard Tom Hardy's yacht, Liarleeta, were his mother, Mrs. Tom Hardy, his sister, Pam, Mary Stead, and her fiancé, Don Haselgrove, Janet Wigg and her fiancé, John Badger.

Mrs. Hardy was in a white linen shirtmaker frock.

Pam chose blue-and-white checked shorts and a lemon yellow shirt, and later changed into a sunfrock with fish and flowers in gay colors on a white background.

Among guests of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Haselgrove were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dicker.

AMONG SPECTATORS at the gala opening of the SA Yacht Squadron at Outer Harbor this afternoon were (from left)—Miss Mary Mehan, Mr. Peter Sangster, and Miss Rachel Bowen.
